Growing up, growing older, or simply growing is the natural order of things. The children of yesterday are today's adults. Seeds planted decades ago are now towering trees. What were once upon a time merely dreams or fantasies transform to become true and intense passions.

The spirit of growth is something Azimut Yachts is very familiar with. In fact, some might say it is embedded in our DNA. Since the very beginning, over 50 years ago, the company has demonstrated an indomitable belief in itself and the sector, as it has continued to grow, fearlessly pushing the boundaries in a quest to become greater in every sense of the world. It is also no coincidence that one of its most successful collections is called GRANDE, which translates from Italian as large, big or great.

And so we are proud to announce not only the arrival of the biggest boat ever produced in our shipyards, but also the news that it represents our first foray into tri-deck design. And, like any proud parent, we would love to share photos and a few more details.

What better place to start than the breath-taking panoramic terrace which seems to float several metres over the sea? This extraordinary feat of design is achieved by an innovative raised aft cockpit that is divided into a sea-facing open-air zone that merges into a covered, patio-like area as it continues towards the prow. The exterior lines are elegant yet commanding, just as you would expect from a flagship. Then there is a beach area that, even if we do say so ourselves, is truly stunning, with its 30 square metres surface hovering tantalisingly close to the water.

The interiors, designed by Achille Salvagni, also represent a bold evolution with creative new dimensions and a décor that evokes the idea of a spacecraft, with a nod to the Samurai era. A daring, original contrast that surprises and delights.

The GRANDE has already captured the hearts of four clients scattered throughout the globe, so it is fair to say that not only is it a big boat, a great boat, it is also a great success!
