

These Are the 20 Best Antiques Shops in the United States

Your next find is waiting.

BY SARA CLARK AND SARAH DIMARCO OCT 14, 2021

People are turning to antiques stores more and more to find those one-of-a-kind pieces that enliven a home with a timeless sensibility and storied style. After all, decorating with antiques is a great way to avoid encountering many of the supply chain delays consumers are experiencing these days, along with it being a sustain design practice. However, it's helpful to understand that navigating the antiques market requires a lot of thought—from knowing where to shop to what to look for (and, more importantly, what to avoid), as well as the historical design context that comes in handy when embarking on an antiquing adventure. It's no surprise that even the most seasoned and best interior designers can be left feeling overwhelmed.

Luckily, shops across the country are simplifying the "thrill of the hunt." Antiques dealers and designers have been curating and presenting their collections in ways that make shopping for antiques more enjoyable. These 20 secret (and not-so-secret) spots are the best places to find those hidden treasures. Whether you're looking for some leisurely Saturday afternoon entertainment or you're on a serious buying trip to fill a home, you're bound to head home with a unique find from our editors' favorite antiques shops in the United States.

Maison Gerard

Location: New York City

Maison Gerard has been around since 1974 and quickly developed a reputation as the go-to luxury source for French Art Deco furniture, lighting, and objets d'art. The shop has and continues to acquire works from the likes of Jean-Michel Frank, Émile-Jacques Ruhlmann, and Jules Leleu.