

Curved lines highlight Italian architect's design | Photos

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

1 / 15

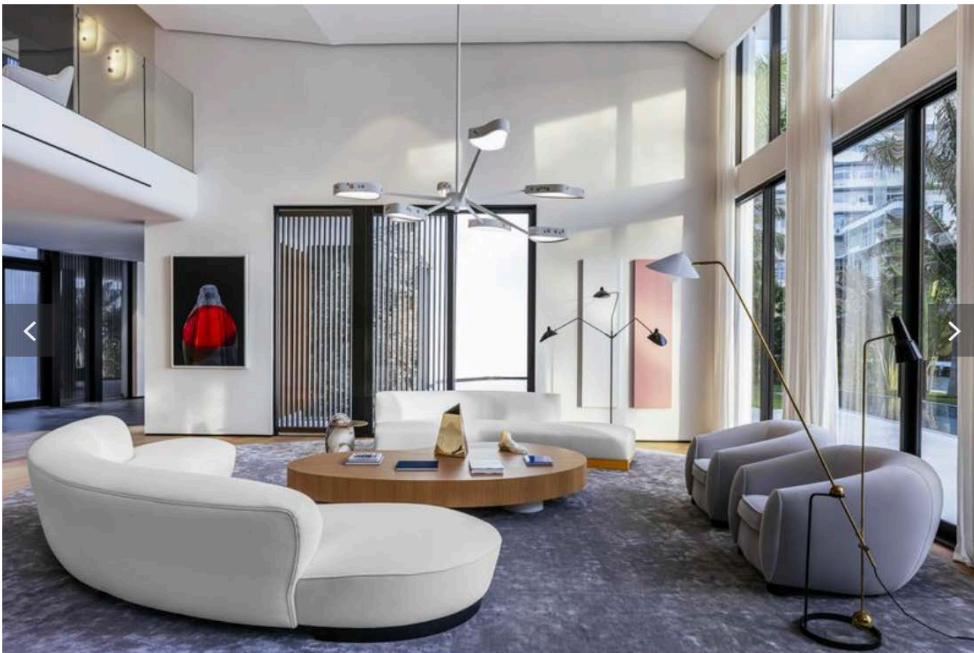

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

2 / 15

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

3 / 15

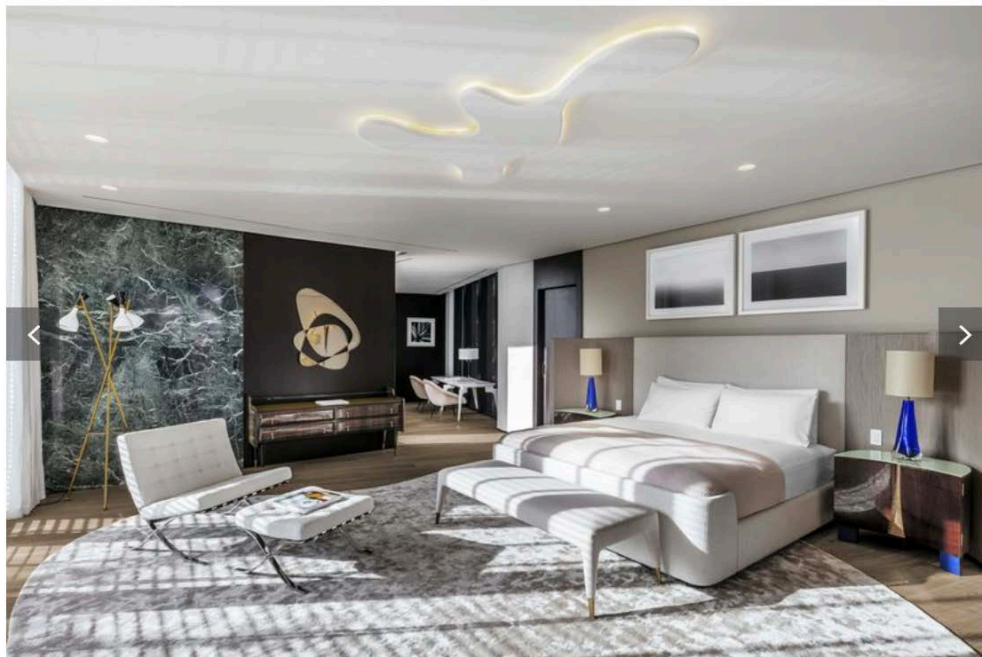

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

4 / 15

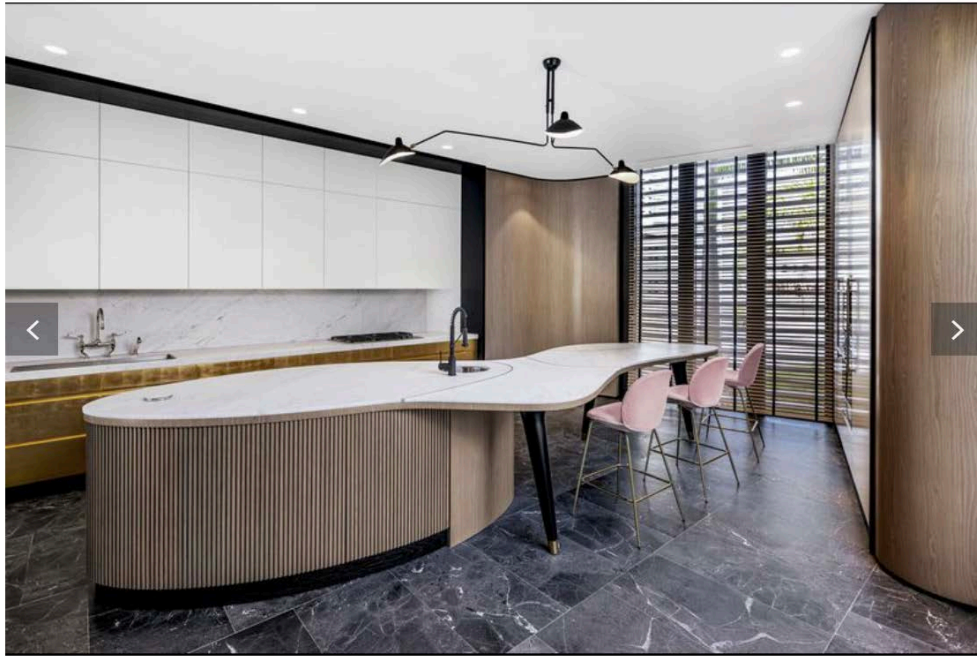

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

5 / 15

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

6 / 15

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

7 / 15

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

8 / 15

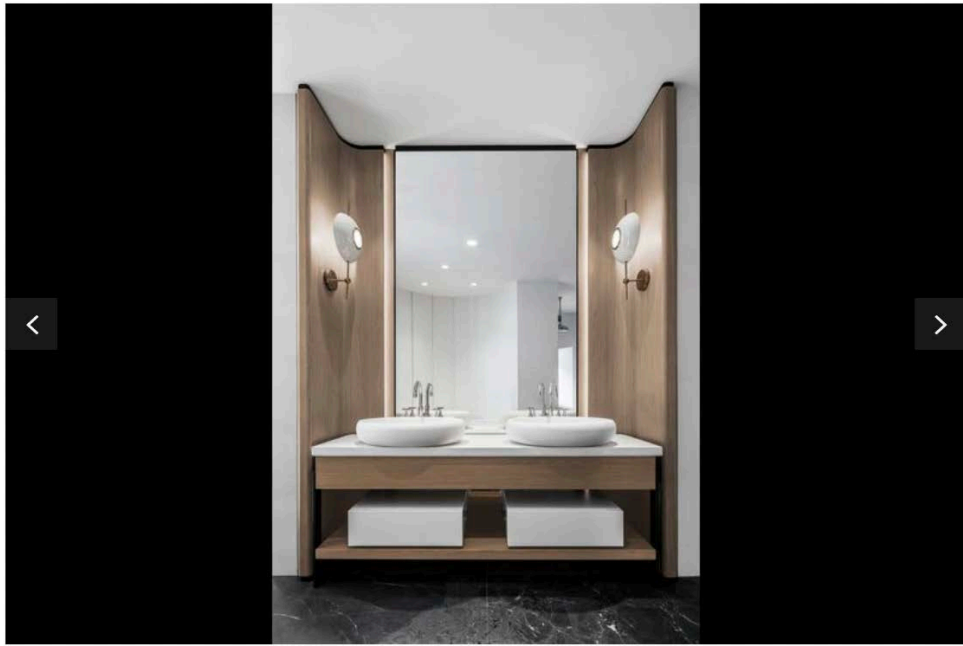

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

9 / 15

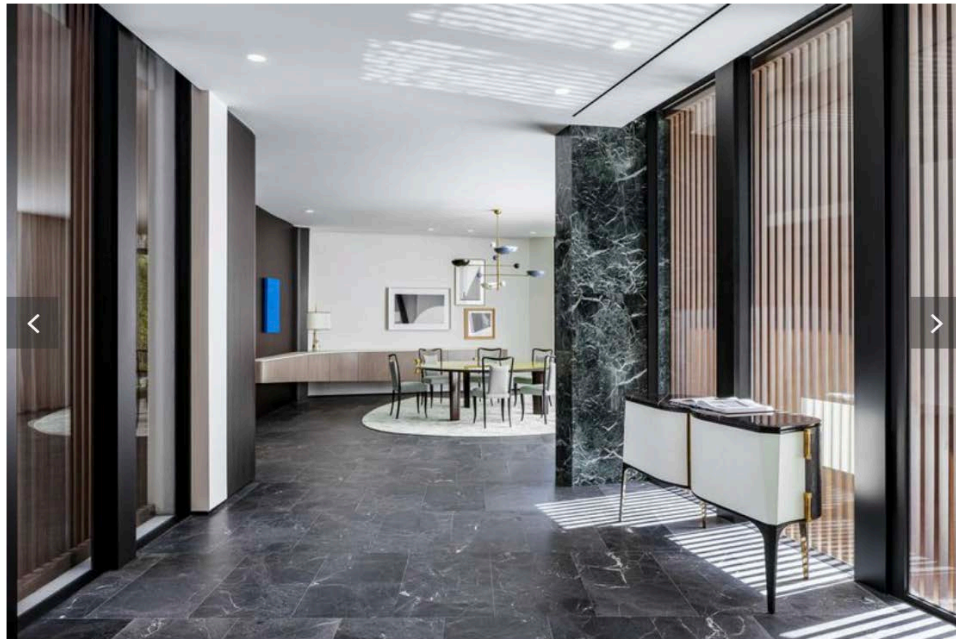

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

10 / 15

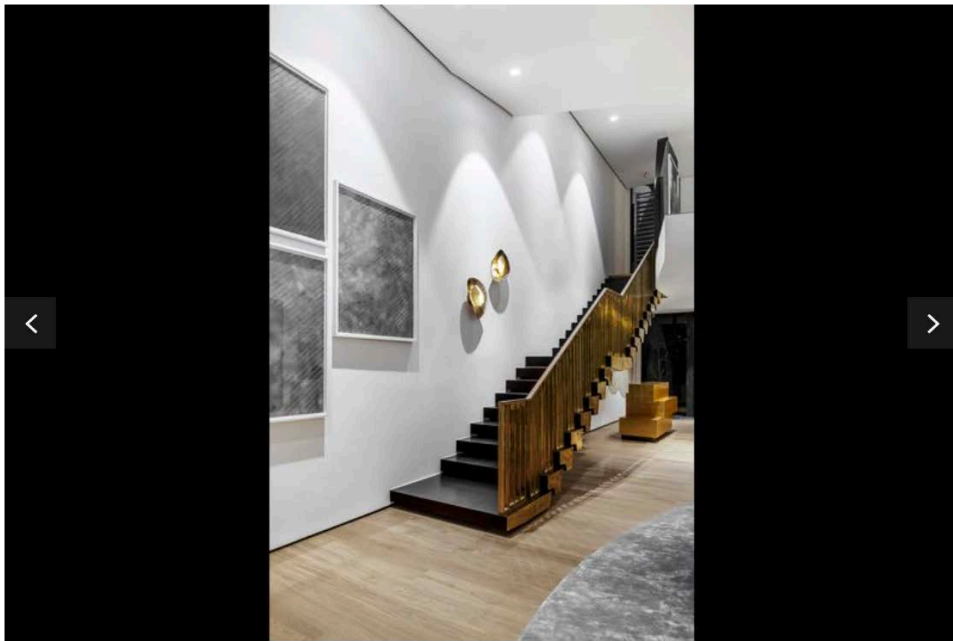

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

11 / 15

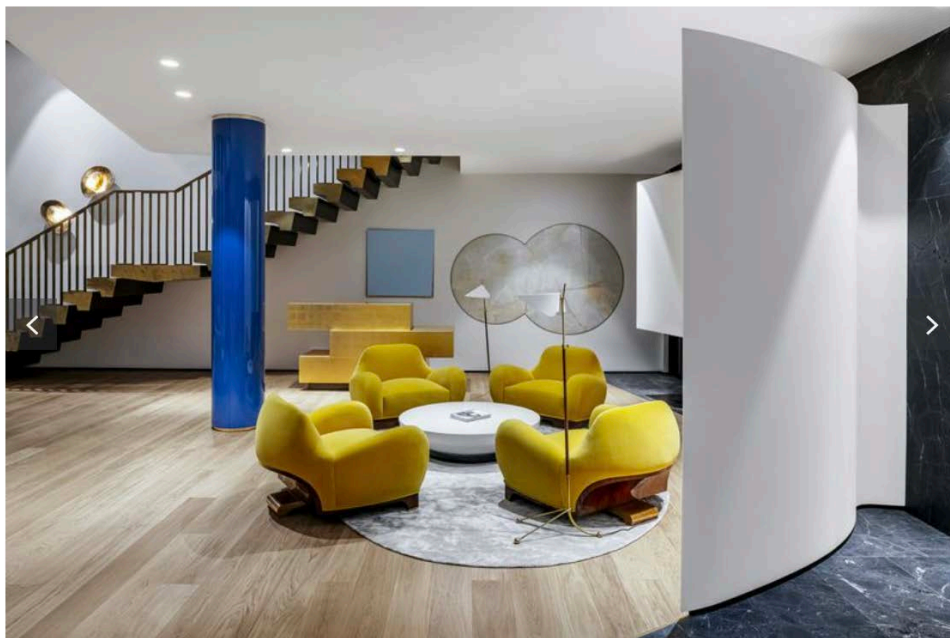

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

12 / 15

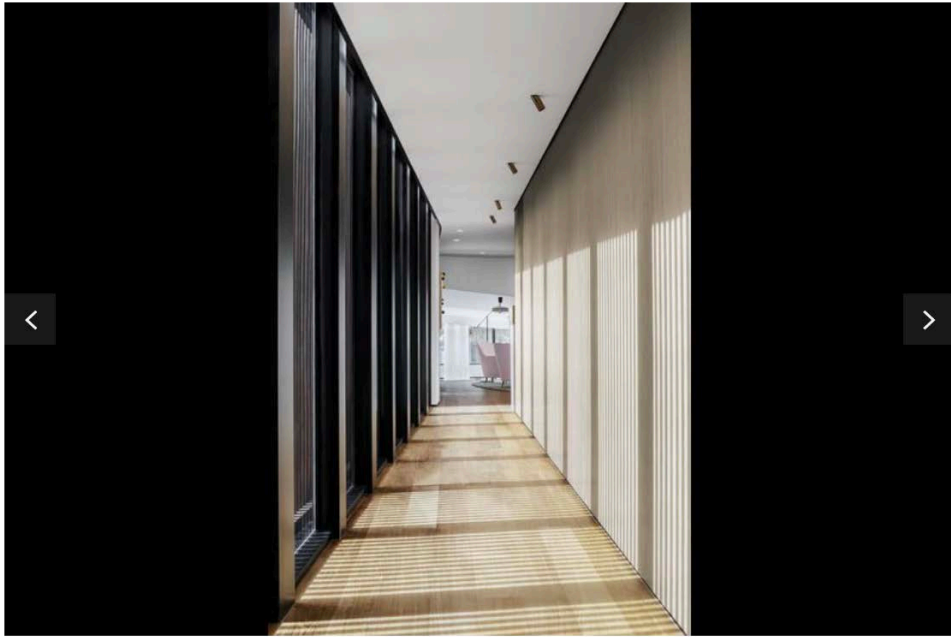

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

13 / 15

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

14 / 15

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.

The architect incorporated curvilinear interiors and walls into the design, as well as handcrafted fixtures, millwork and floors, one-of-a-kind marble and custom-built closets and cabinetry throughout the two-story gated home completed in 2021. (Kris Tamburello for Douglas Elliman Real Estate)

15 / 15

The first ground-up, single-family home in the U.S. designed by Italian architect and designer Achille Salvagni is a contemporary mansion in Miami Beach. It's listed for $19 million.