Between the fabrics and the wallpapers, there's a playful pattern almost everywhere you look at this Upper West Side condo. Located at 2112 Broadway, the historic Apple Bank Building, the two-bedroom home keeps the fun coming with mid-century decor, industrial French doors, and a 100-square-foot vented laundry room. The home is currently on the market for $3,500,000.

A nicely sized entrance foyer is adjacent to the kitchen, which boasts stainless steel appliances including a six-burner Viking range. The open butler's pantry has cool mirrored glass shelving, as well as a separate icemaker and wine fridge.

On the other end of the foyer are several closets, a powder room, and the laundry room.

The center of the home is taken up by the large living room, which features a modern, built-in fireplace, built-in shelving, and enough space for a dining area near the east-facing windows. All of the interiors were designed by Phillip Thomas.

Off either side of the living room are metal and frosted glass French doors that open into both bedroom suites. The layout is not only functional, but it ensures that both bedrooms have light and views. Seen above is the secondary bedroom, which still comes complete with built-in shelving, a huge custom walk-in closet, and an en-suite bathroom.

The primary bedroom suite has even more built-in shelving and a private hallway leading to the large walk-in closet and en-suite bathroom, where you'll find a built-in television.

The building is located right across from the 72nd Street subway station and Trader Joe's. It offers a 24-hour attended lobby, concierge, pet spa, bike room, and windowed gym.
