A CONNOISSEUR (from French connaisseur, from Middle-French connoistre, then connaître meaning "to be acquainted with" or "to know somebody / something.") is a person who has a great deal of knowledge about the fine arts, or an expert judge in matters of taste.

Internationally modern connoisseurship is also used in the context of gastronomy and luxury goods, i.e. in connection with fine food, wine, accessories, jewellery, watches and many other products whose consumption and ownership can be pleasing to the senses.
