After its cancelation in 2020 and its delay from May until September, the most fashionable of all of the red carpet events The Met Gala was back in full swing and was rescheduled to cap off New York Fashion Week. The theme In America: A Lexicon of Fashion will open to the public on September 18, 2021 and a second part of the exhibit, “In America: An Anthology of Fashion.” will open in May 2022. The first part will focus on today’s most relevant and talented designers focusing on the emerging creative genius who are redefining American fashion for today. This marks the Costume Institute's 75th anniversary. The second exhibit will showcase designers and cultural events that will depict different times in American fashion. But tonight was all about the styles and different celebrity interpretations of American fashion which ran the gamut from patriotic colors of red, white and blue to stars spangled gowns and jewelry. Western themes also were out in full force as were American sports inspired looks. Old Hollywood glamour was also renewed for a new generation. There were also the more subdued looks that depicted America as the melting pot with a variety of nods to the diversity of cultures the U.S. has always represented.

The jewelry lit up the night like glittery stars in the sky —with diamonds a plenty in a variety of looks that accessorized the gowns to perfection. Rubies and sapphires also made an appearance as did antique and vintage styles.
