FRESH DESIGNS AND THE MINDS BEHIND THEM

AT HOME ON THE RANGE

Colette Shelton, aka Coco, casts herself in many roles: L.A.-based blogger, star and producer of the CocoCozy Design House series on Amazon Prime, and home furnishings designer. Now she adds a collection of kitchenware to her credits. Chic charcuterie boards (and more) for etúHome tie to her French heritage and turn the everyday into functional art. etuhome.com

THE GREENBRIER

A pause in international travel has renewed interest in domestic destinations. The Greenbrier welcomes guests whose bucket lists include the country's historic hotels. Nestled in the mountains of West Virginia, the iconic resort that claims itself as the country's first, has once again reimagined its public spaces—this time through the colorful lens of Carleton Varney and his Dorothy Draper sensibilities. This Christmas, the lobby, drenched in holiday spirit with soaring trees in every space, amplifies the theatrics of the color- and pattern-saturated walls. Taking advantage of the floral movement in interiors, The Greenbrier continues to entertain its guests with visual amenities to match its hospitality. greenbrier.com

TIMOTHY CORRIGAN for Kyle Bunting

With his recent real estate purchase—an old French chateau (his third)—under a full building and grounds renovation, Los Angeles-based designer Timothy Corrigan is focused on finding age-appropriate antiques—and new things, too—to fill the grand spaces. His line of rugs for Kyle Bunting pulls elements from his French gardens and renders them in cowhide. “Creating a collection of rug designs in hides allows for a new interpretation of timeless motifs,” Corrigan says. “Each property that I tackle comes with its own special moments. Photography is one way to document this renovation. But the rugs also give me the opportunity to capture nuances that can be enjoyed by myself and others.” kylebunting.com
